Extract A

The growth of the electric scooter market

Over recent years, there has been a large increase in the popularity of electric scooters. These scooters are now a common sight on the streets and pavements of many cities around the world. They are used, mainly by younger people, for leisure use as well as by people travelling short distances to work. The scooters provide an alternative to electric bikes which have grown in popularity. 5

Supporters of electric scooters say they will help reduce the use of cars, buses and trains, giving cities cleaner, quieter and safer streets. Opponents argue that they offer limited health benefits and can be a safety hazard.

Manufacturers of electric scooters are currently competing for market share. They sell business to business (B2B) to rental companies and business to consumer (B2C) for private sales. Globally, the supply of electric scooters is expected to peak in 2025 with a revenue value of £20bn. 10

In 2020 the UK Government allowed the trial of electric scooters by rental businesses. These businesses hire out scooters to the public and charge an hourly fee. Unlike many countries, use of privately owned scooters remains illegal on roads and pavements in the UK. There has been an increase in the number of start-up businesses renting the scooters in major cities of the UK. 15
