Manufacturers intensify their search for low cost alternative to China

Higher wages in mainland China have forced labour-intensive industries such as clothing to find cheaper locations, with Vietnam one of the beneficiaries.

The number of factories moving out of China in search of lower-cost options in Southeast and Central Asia is accelerating, as manufacturers face increased pressure to reduce unit costs. The strength of the yuan and lengthy shipping times were also given as reasons. 5

Japanese electronics giant Panasonic Corp announced in August 2015 that it would close its lithium-ion battery factory in Beijing and cut 1,300 jobs. Taiwan's Foxconn, a manufacturer for brands such as Apple, also announced in August that it would invest $5bn in India to build assembly plants. Meanwhile, South Korean tech giant Samsung Electronics will invest an additional $3bn in Vietnam to add to its existing facilities. 10

Foxconn's factory in Shenzhen employs more than 200,000 workers. Minimum monthly wages in the city have increased by more than 50% in the past four years.

Wages in China have increased dramatically since 2011. In each of the past two years wages in China have risen by more than 10%, increasing the average monthly salary to 2 030 yuan ($305). The minimum monthly wage in Vietnam is $145. 15

China's loss has become Vietnam's gain. Tariff cuts, expected after Vietnam enters the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) agreement, are another attraction for manufacturers considering relocation. The TPP involves 12 countries: the US, Japan, Malaysia, Vietnam, Singapore, Brunei, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Mexico, Chile and Peru. The TPP aims to deepen economic ties between these nations and increase free trade and growth by reducing and abolishing around 18,000 tariffs. Sources estimate that Vietnam's GDP could grow by an extra $36bn over the next ten years if the deal goes ahead. 20

It is estimated that in Vietnam, the basic production cost is about 30% less than in China. Vietnam is rapidly increasing its market share in manufacturing categories such as footwear, clothing and electronic products. Vietnamese exports of footwear to the US grew 24% in 2014, while China's rose by only 0.3% 25

Vietnam's Economy Is an Emerging Market Standout

While growth slowed in the world's largest emerging economies, including Russia, Brazil and China, Vietnam's steady economic growth at nearly 7% in 2016 placed it among the fastest-growing markets in the world. Increasing domestic demand and foreign direct investment helped Vietnam counter the global problems affecting many other economies. Private domestic consumption rose by 9.3% and foreign direct investment surged by 17.4% to a record-high of $14.5bn by the end of 2015. 5

Vietnam has a communist government. Its draft economic plan for 2016 to 2020 shows a target of as much as 7% average annual expansion in GDP. The government is aiming to increase GDP per capita to $3 500 by 2020. Inflation will be kept below 5% and the budget deficit capped at 4% of GDP. 10

Revlon to buy Elizabeth Arden

US cosmetics company Revlon has agreed to buy a rival cosmetics company Elizabeth Arden in an $870m takeover. The deal will bring together Revlon's cosmetics and hair colour products with its rival's anti-ageing creams and celebrity licensed fragrances. The move will create a much bigger company with annual sales of $3bn. Revlon paid 50% more than Elizabeth Arden's current share price. 5

Elizabeth Arden is based in Florida, USA, and is known for its luxury skincare products, especially anti-ageing ranges. Its brands include PreVage, Ceramide and its trademark Eight Hour range, which was launched in 1930 and is still Elizabeth Arden's bestseller. Its fragrances include those licensed from celebrities including Britney Spears, Justin Bieber and Taylor Swift. 10

Revlon's strength is in hair colour and make-up, which are sold through mass retail channels and beauty salons in 130 countries. The takeover will expand the firm's presence around the world.

The deal is expected to generate $140m of cost savings by integrating the manufacturing and distribution networks of both companies, removing excess capacity and giving them greater purchasing power. 15

The beauty market is a tough business: the new company is up against New York-based Estée Lauder, and the world's largest cosmetics company, L'Oréal, based in Paris.
