General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

If Primark finds that costs are rising, it can take appropriate steps by varying the price. • However, this method of pricing does not take into account the actions of competitors. It may be that Primark could price its goods higher in line with the prices of its competitors. • It is often difficult to accurately calculate total costs of producing a product. Primark source goods from around the world. Labour costs, material costs, delivery costs, exchange changes will change regularly.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
Level 1	1–2	Isolated elements of knowledge and understanding – recall based. Weak or no relevant application to business examples. Generic assertions may be presented.
Level 2	3–5	Accurate knowledge and understanding. Applied accurately to the business and its context. Chains of reasoning are presented, showing cause(s) and/or effect(s) but may be assertions or incomplete. An attempt at an assessment is presented that is unbalanced and unlikely to show the significance of competing arguments.
Level 3	6–8	Accurate and thorough knowledge and understanding, supported throughout by relevant and effective use of the business behaviour/context. Logical chains of reasoning, showing cause(s) and/or effect(s).

		Assessment is balanced, well contextualised, using quantitative and/or qualitative information, and shows an awareness of competing arguments/factors.

Question	Indicative content
1(e)	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. The indicative content below exemplifies some of the points that candidates may make but this does not imply that any of these must be included. Other relevant points must also be credited. Knowledge, Application, Analysis, Evaluation – indicative content <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ethical sourcing is where a business buys materials and products that are produced using fair working conditions and/or with no negative impact on the environment. • The Primark Code of Conduct is a set of ethical principles that suppliers must commit to. The code states, amongst other things, that child labour shall not be used. • It is important to Primark as ‘there is increasing awareness about the ethics of clothes manufacturing’ and bad publicity could damage the reputation of Primark and impact its sales. • Having a reputation for poor ethics could lead to poor sales if consumers are aware/concerned about the problems. • Ethical sourcing may lead to improved employee motivation which may result in improved customer service for Primark’s customers and increased revenues for the company • However, sourcing ethically is costly. Paying fair wages for example will push up the cost of the clothes which may affect Primark’s USP of offering low prices. • Ethical sourcing may not be a primary objective or concern of Primark as they may be more concerned with keeping prices low /achieving higher market share. • It is debateable whether consumers are actually concerned with ethical sourcing or whether they are more concerned with low priced fashion. It may be, therefore, more important to Primark to keep prices low to maintain customer loyalty.

Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	A completely inaccurate response.
Level 1	1-2	Isolated elements of knowledge and understanding – recall based. Weak or no relevant application to business examples. Generic assertions may be presented.
Level 2	3-4	Elements of knowledge and understanding, which are applied to the business example. Chains of reasoning are presented, but may be assertions or incomplete. A generic or superficial assessment is presented.
Level 3	5-7	Accurate and thorough knowledge and understanding, supported throughout by relevant and effective use of the business behaviour/context. Analytical perspectives are presented, with developed chains of reasoning, showing cause(s) and/or effect(s). An attempt at an assessment is presented, using quantitative and/or qualitative information, though unlikely to show the significance of competing arguments.
Level 4	8-10	Accurate and thorough knowledge and understanding, supported throughout by relevant and effective use of the business behaviour/context. A coherent and logical chain of reasoning, showing cause(s) and/or effect(s). Assessment is balanced, wide ranging and well contextualised, using quantitative and/or qualitative information and shows an awareness of competing arguments/factors, leading to a supported judgement.

When a firm attempts to serve different groups of customers the cost of production rises as well as research, promotional and distribution costs. • By focusing on providing healthier food and drinks there is a danger that this specialisation could lead to problems if consumers change their purchasing habits significantly. • The market segments identified may be too small, e.g. Coconut water, and may not generate sufficient sales to be viable / profitable for the business

This allows Innocent to determine the potential success of their products. • Innocent are able to gather feedback and make changes to the products before launching on a larger scale and so preventing costly mistakes. • Selling in 10 shops enables them to gather sales data to assist with production planning for potential future demand. • However, a disadvantage of test marketing is the cost which can be expensive and time consuming. • Testing the new products in a limited number of shops may delay the launch of the product which may mean losing first-mover advantages. • During test marketing Innocent may run the risk of competitors learning about their products which may be copied and brought to the market earlier. • Results from test marketing may not be conclusive and do not always predict success. Products that sell locally might not sell well in other geographical areas. Innocent run the risk that the findings from the test marketing is not representative of other groups of customers.

Question	Indicative content
3	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. The indicative content below exemplifies some of the points that candidates may make but this does not imply that any of these must be included. Other relevant points must also be credited. Knowledge, Application, Analysis, Evaluation – indicative content Internal recruitment <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Internal recruitment is when the business looks to fill a job vacancy from within the company. • IKEA are expanding rapidly and is looking for creative, enthusiastic people who can contribute towards their sales growth. • It is more cost efficient as the business does not have to advertise the job externally. This will help IKEA keep costs and prices low to enable them to remain competitive in the market. • By recruiting internally, IKEA know the capabilities of the candidate, ie whether they are creative and enthusiastic and have a better idea of how they will perform in this new role. Enthusiastic staff may provide better customer service and boost sales. • Promoting staff from within the company can be motivating for all employees who will recognise that their hard work is rewarded and so increase productivity of the business. • IKEA will know if the internal candidate is likely to fit the IKEA culture and get on well with the rest of the team. Good teamwork is required to improve productivity and customer service. • However, internal recruitment will not bring fresh ideas or new thinking into the business. Recruiting internally will create further vacancies which will eventually need to be filled externally. External recruitment <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • External recruitment is when the business looks to fill the vacancy from outside of the business. • May be preferable because IKEA prides itself on creative and innovative products and recruiting externally may mean there are new ideas or energy coming into the business. • Whilst IKEA has 190,000 workers internal recruitment still limits the potential number of candidates that they can choose from. External recruitment offers a wider pool of potential talent to choose from. • However, external recruitment is expensive and a long process and there is no guarantee you will find the right person to fit in with IKEA's values.

		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Different job roles will require different skills and IKEA must assess if these skills can be found internally or whether external recruitment is required. • IKEA would have to look at the effectiveness of internal and external recruitment to see historically which candidates have performed the best and contributed the most to growth. • IKEA is likely to use a combination of both when recruiting staff depending on the job requirements. Also when opening a new store they may have no option but to recruit externally to fill all of the job roles required.
