General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

There is competition from Norwegian Air Shuttle and Scoot, which are attracting customers with low priced fares. This may lead to larger airlines reducing their prices in order to compete. <li data-bbox="421 1359 1382 1512">• However, the low budget airlines are competing mainly on price. If price of airline tickets becomes a key factor then the larger airlines may also have to reduce prices. This may impact the quality of the service provided in order to reduce costs of the business. <li data-bbox="421 1518 1398 1630">• The increase in the number of airlines may cause congestion in and around airports and long queuing times for services such as airport security for all customers. <li data-bbox="421 1637 1434 1798">• The costs associated with airlines are high. It may be that, in the long term, smaller airlines such as Norwegian Air Shuttle find it difficult to compete with larger airlines. The smaller airlines may be forced out of the market leaving larger airlines the option of increasing prices.

It is the use of a 2-dimensional diagram that plots products or services in a market using two key variables. <li data-bbox="421 685 1267 797">• Mapping is a simple, visual tool that can utilise a variety of variables, and may have helped Emirates understand its position in the airline market relative to competition. <li data-bbox="421 804 1286 916">• It may have helped Emirates spot gaps in the market. It may have seen an opportunity to provide better inflight entertainment. <li data-bbox="421 922 1305 1115">• It is a useful method for analysing competition. Emirates may have used a market map to compare prices and destinations that competitors fly to. This may have led to new flights such as to Phnom Penh being offered to extend its flight destinations. <li data-bbox="421 1122 1305 1279">• Mapping also identifies where the market is saturated due to a high level of competition. Emirates may have avoided these areas/destinations and focussed on ones that were more viable/profitable. <li data-bbox="421 1285 1302 1442">• However, market mapping has its limitations. A map might identify a gap in the market, for example destinations not flown to, but there may be a valid reason for the gap such as low demand or flight restrictions. <li data-bbox="421 1449 1310 1606">• The market map does not guarantee success; it is a simplistic method to help visualise the market, but needs more in-depth research on consumer preferences and tastes before important decisions are made. <li data-bbox="421 1612 1270 1724">• Mapping shows a snapshot in time and Emirates must also consider the strategy of its competitors, such as Etihad, in order to compete successfully. <li data-bbox="421 1731 1305 1870">• There are many other factors which may have contributed to the growth of Emirates such as effective management and leadership, good financial control, good advertising and favourable economic factors.

3	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. Removing layers of middle management may enable Tata to be more competitive in the car market. <li data-bbox="421 871 1406 1061">• Butschek’s aim is to make decision making faster and improve customer satisfaction. Reducing the number of layers in the organisation will shorten the chain of command and allow ideas and instructions to be communicated quickly, to enable Tata to be more responsive to customer needs. <li data-bbox="421 1072 1401 1180">• The flatter structure, and a wider span of control, may benefit those workers who seek more responsibility and empowerment. This may lead to higher levels of motivation and productivity at Tata. <li data-bbox="421 1191 1374 1341">• However, removing a layer from the hierarchy may create skills shortages within the business and Tata may lose managers with valuable experience in the motor industry and reduce competitive advantage. <li data-bbox="421 1352 1394 1503">• Butschek told staff the new organisation structure is likely to create some uncertainty. Delaying can have a negative impact on motivation due to job losses. Remaining workers may seek other employment and Tata may lose more of its skilled workers. <li data-bbox="421 1514 1434 1621">• Managers remaining will have a wider span of control which, if it is too wide, can damage communication within the business, and makes it difficult for some employees to focus and specialise at their jobs. <li data-bbox="421 1632 1410 1740">• A period of disruption may occur as people take on new responsibilities and fulfil new roles which may have a negative effect on Tata and their goal to increase market share within 3 years. <li data-bbox="421 1751 1441 1904">• In a flat organisational structure, there is less chance for workers to be promoted. This will affect the motivation of current ambitious staff and also potentially reduce job applications of external recruits which may restrict innovation within Tata Motors. <li data-bbox="421 1915 1417 2011">• Other factors may be more important than increasing efficiency such as the leadership style used, good after sales service and skills of the workers.

		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Overall, it depends on why they have lost market share. If the costs of producing the cars are excessive than Tata should delay to be competitive in the market. The new structure should be introduced carefully to ensure a smooth transition and prevent key skills/personnel being lost to competitors.
